When Nature Strikes
Rockne's Power
Why Babies Eat Pins
When Our Eyes Open

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—NATURE STRIKES with horrifying force. In six seconds Managua became a mass of ruins.
Every building in the town was destroyed, every building in the vicinity leveled to the ground.
More than 1,000 killed.
An attack in war equals that.
And the Managua disaster is compared with the famous
"earthquake" of Nov. 1, 1909.

In an instant the great city of Managua became a mass of ruins.
Every building in the town was destroyed, every building in the vicinity leveled to the ground.
More than 1,000 killed.
An attack in war equals that.
And the Managua disaster is
compared with the famous
"earthquake" of Nov. 1, 1909.

Twenty thousand were killed, property loss amounted to $100,000,000, and the earthquake was felt from Scotland to Asia Minor.
The extent of this disaster, wrecking churches, caused many to lose faith in Christianity.
It should rather have increased faith, reminding them of the earth's marvelous stability, traveling around the sun at the rate of nearly 2,000,000 miles a day, and going with the sun through space
Heaven knows how fast.

PRESIDENT HOOVER telegraphs the widow of Knute Rockne,
"I know that every American loves you." A great teacher was Rockne. He convinced himself that his boys could win, convinced them that they could win,
and they did win.
Success depends on transferring ideas from your own head into the heads of others.
Many, old, with creaking joints, will ask, "How many teachers of Latin and Greek, Sanskrit and higher mathematics, how many preachers of the gospel, would have been able to attract half as much attention as Knute Rockne now attracts, because he was the best teacher of football?"

MOTHERS, NURSES read and member.
Dr. Jackson whose specialty is removing foreign bodies from human air and food passages, says babies swallow pins because their mothers set the example.
When changing the baby, a mother holds safety pins in her mouth. The baby, learning by imitation, as all young animals must, puts safety pins in its mouth.
Don't hold pins in your mouth in the presence of babies or young children.

EARL MUSSELMAN, 22, student at the Pennsylvania Institute for the Blind, and blind from birth, can now see, thanks to surgery, and has taken his first look at the world.
Bright flowers delight him and he finds intense pleasure in studying faces of companions whom he knew only by their voices.
The young man says: "I won't have to guess at things any more."
Perhaps we shall all say that when we awake on the other side of the grave and our eyes are opened.

Let us hope so. This period of darkness would hardly be worth while if it were all.

MEMBERS DISCUSS CLUB ACTIVITIES

Norwalk Man To Act as Golf Pro at Galion Course.

Special to The Star.
GALION, April 2—Members of the Galion Country club held a general meeting Wednesday night at the caddy house at the club grounds on the South State road. It was decided during the meeting to lower the initiation fee from $110 to $27.50 for active second class members which includes members within 25 miles of Galion, and it was also decided to allow non-playing members into the club for the sum of $25 a year.

Mr. Reed, pro for the past three years at the Norwalk Country club, has been hired as golf professional at the local course for this year and Harry Erickson was again hired as the greens-keeper. Mr. Erickson will also be in charge of the club house and furnish meals.

BROTHERS' TRIAL FOR SLAYING NEARS END

Jury Starts Deliberation Today on Testimony Concerning Lingle Murder.

By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO, April 2—The Lingle murder trial was at the verdict stage today as court opened for a final outburst of forensic fireworks before the jury begins consideration of the question whether "Jake" Lingle, the Tribune crime reporter, was killed by Leo V. Brothers, of St. Louis.

Only the final arguments of Attorney Louis Piquett for the defense and of Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks for the prosecution, and the instructions of Judge Joseph Sabath remained when the court rapped for order.

In the closing arguments begun yesterday, each side attempted to pick flaws in the testimony of the witnesses, Attorney Piquett declaring that the state's attorney had failed to show a motive for the slaying and describing the case as a "gigantic frameup."

Storm Blamed for Crash Fatal to Four Persons

By The Associated Press.
TOLEDO, O., April 2—A blinding April snowstorm was blamed today for the deaths of four persons whose automobile was smashed by a New York Central passenger train at Lima City, four miles south of Perrysburg, yesterday.

Those killed were Thomas B. Parrish, 48, Beattie Parrish, 25, his wife, and Mr. and Mrs. David Davenport, parents of Mrs. Parrish, all of Perrysburg. They had gone for a drive in the country and were returning to Perrysburg when the snow storm caught them. Parrish, who was driving, was believed to have been unable to see the flash signal which protects the railroad crossing.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, April 3

BY GENEVIEVE KEMBLE.

THE sidereal operations for this day hold auguries of disruption, delays and obstructions, with a general disturbance of the affairs both business and personal. While correspondence or contracts may present some favorable angles, on the whole it may be difficult to make much progress or profit or to circumvent the forces of opposition and frustration. Be careful about change or travel.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of frustration, delays and postponements, affecting their personal as well as business affiliations. Correspondence or contracts may have some advantageous developments, but make changes or journeys with discretion. In private relations an element of secrecy or intrigue dominates. A child born on this day may be restless, nervous and unsettled, prone to postpone and temporize. It may be clever and intellectual and socially may lean toward the intriguing or curious in its associations.

Men, like, tools, are useless when they lose their temper.

JOSEPHINE VELEZ IN WESTERN PICTURE

Josephine Velez has one of the leading feminine roles in Bob Steele's western, "The Ridin' Fool," playing at the Marion Friday and by Frances Morris.

Wellyn Totman wrote the story and J. P. McCarthy, who devotes his time to writing and directing western features, turned out this

Josephine Velez has been in talk-broken English makes her val-

New Health District In Operation One Year

Dr. N. Siffritt, City-County Commissioner. Outlines Accomplishments of New Group at Meeting of Board; Points to Saving of Money by Combination.

The combined city and county health unit celebrated the first anniversary of its founding yesterday at a regular meeting of the city board of health.

The combination a year ago of the two health offices was hailed as a decided success yesterday by members of the board and Mayor
L. Don Jones.
In an interview after the meeting, Dr. N. Siffritt, city and county health commissioner, expressed his satisfaction over accomplishments of the unit during the year and the possibilities in health work in the future.

Cities Advantages
Several advantages of the combined health districts given by Dr.
Siffritt as factors in the success of the new unit follow.

Probably of prime interest to Marion and Marion county taxpayers is the economy in which the unit has functioned. Savings of approximately $2,200 a year in salaries alone have been made in the new unit.

Possibly next in the order of importance is the efficiency made possible by the combination. A better tone of cooperation prevails in health circles throughout the county than ever before, making possible greater efficiency.

City and county nursing service,
with cooperation of Red Cross nurses, has been brought to a higher level of efficiency by bringing the service under direction of the health office.

One of the principal aims of the health office is to prevent and eliminate contagious diseases.
Through an enlarged program of health work in city and county schools, with one nurse visiting every school in the city once a week, contagious diseases have been held at an absolute minimum.

By checking the spread of contagious diseases, the nurses have more than repaid their salaries by savings in quarantine bills, Dr.
Siffritt believes.

Food Inspection
The combination also expanded the work of Dr. J. T. Gruber, inspector of food and milk, to include the entire county instead of just the city. As a result, food and milk sold in every section of the county is subjected to inspection.

tion and child welfare work.
Very little more than routine procedure and the reading of monthly reports came before the city board meeting yesterday afternoon.
Dr. Gruber reported the bacteria count in milk sold in the city last month has run high because a number of dairy farms producing milk for the city have not yet placed coolers in use this spring.
Monthly reports were also given by Dr. Siffritt, C. M. Tobin, sanitary officer, Miss Florence Spaulding, supervising nurse, Miss Mabel Hastings, city nurse, Miss Alma Denny, tuberculosis nurse.

COURT CLOSES TWO-DAY MEET

Fifth Ohio District Judges Dispose of Morrow County Cases.

Special to The Star.
MT. GILEAD, April 2—The Fifth Ohio District Appellate court closed a two-day session at the courthouse here Thursday. In addition to seven cases on the docket from Morrow county a number of actions appealed from common pleas courts in five other counties in the district were heard. The entire day Tuesday was devoted to the cases from Richland, Muskingum, Ashland, Knox and Licking counties.

Tuesday evening the action of J. E. Campbell against J. V. Taylor of Marengo was heard but no decision was rendered. Motions to dismiss two suits of Laurence Pace against Reuben Pace were overruled by the court. These are actions for the collection of alimony.

Common Pleas Judge W. P. Vaughan authorized the sale of 30 acres of land belonging to Pace in order that alimony payments could be met and the appeal followed his action in refusing to enjoin the sale of the land by Sheriff Charles E. Miller.

Wednesday the case of Mr. Frankie Henry vs. Oscar T. Wood was dismissed. The case was appealed from the common pleas court here when a jury refused to allow damages to Mrs. Henry for injuries sustained when a buggy in which she was riding was struck by an automobile driven by Wood.

Judge Clyde C. Sherick, of Ashland, Charles C. Lemert of Zanesville, and Charles W. Montgomery of Newark are the district appellate court members. Decision in the other cases presented was withheld.

START WORK ON NEW HANGAR

New Organization To Be Known as Institute of Aviation.

Special to The Star.
BUCYRUS, April 2—Aviation activities in Bucyrus which practically ceased with the destruction by fire last spring of the hangar on the Peter Metzger farm on the Winchester road south of the city, will be reopened this week when the construction of a new hangar at the same field will be started under the supervision of Miss Lauretta Schimmler, local aviatix who is being backed by all local aviation enthusiasts and the chamber of commerce in the project.

The new organization will be known as the Bucyrus Institute of Aviation and with the permission of the city council the port will be named "Port Bucyrus" in compliance with a state law which requires the approval of the council body in naming an air port for a city. Present plans call for the port to be ready for operation May 1.

Lease Hangar
Announcement was made by Miss Schimmler that storage space has been leased at the hangar by a sales manager of a neighboring manufacturing concern for storage of his plane, one of the new type Wright Junior pusher type plane, which has but recently been put on the market. Another ship has been leased to be used as the port for student training and passenger service which will include long distance taxi service.

The new hangar to be built upon the foundation of the old building which was destroyed by fire of unknown origin last spring, will be of all steel construction and will be practically fireproof.

Interest Revives
The erection of a hangar at the Metzger field, which was recently vetoed by Mayor Arthur Schuler as the site for the city's municipal airport and for which bonds in the sum of $10,000 have already been sold, is expected to bring about some action in the purchase of a municipal port. Purchase of the Metzger site was vigorously opposed by Mayor Schuler and two members of the city council because of the fact that the site is not located upon a main highway.

Another indication that Bucyrus is to be recognized in aviation activities was a recent announcement that representatives of two bona fide airplane manufacturing concerns have been in touch with the chamber of commerce for several weeks negotiating terms for locating their plants here.

It was also recently learned that a national aerial transport company of note who are establishing two new lines to begin operation May 1, running north and south and east and west are considering crossing the lines at Bucyrus. Trial flights over these lines have already been made.

ROCKNE REMAINS REACH SOUTH BEND

THRONGS MASSED AT STATION AS BODY IS REMOVED FROM TRAIN

Sadness and Despair Grip Notre Dame as Football Chieftain Comes "Home."

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 2—Knute Rockne was back "home" today. His epic odyssey on earth was near its end.

All that was mortal of the man, who blazed such a brilliant path of human achievement in his life span of only 43 short years, rested peacefully in a closed casket, flower-blanked in a quiet, modest funeral home, three short miles from the campus of old Notre Dame.

The great Nordic chieftain of American football and good sportsmanship, who but four days ago left South Bend and Notre Dame with a broad smile on his face, was back "home" with the boys he loved so well and with those who loved him and who will cherish his memory forever. But instead of ecstasy and joy, he brought sadness and despair. He was dead and so were the hearts of the thousands who found it so hard to believe that their "Rock" could pass on so tragically at the very zenith of his glory of Notre Dame's glory.

Deny Last View

Never again were his friends to look upon his face. The tragic crash of the airplane, which took his life, in Kansas, denied even that.

Those in charge of the body viewed it and decided it would be best to keep the casket sealed forever except to give his widow a one last glimpse at the man everyone cherished. But it was doubtful whether Mrs. Rockne would care to see "Rock" again under the circumstances of mutilation and death. She, like all of Rock's boys, wanted to remember him as he was when last she saw him—beaming, joking and laughing.

Escorted by guards of honor, the body of the famous Notre Dame football coach was returned to South Bend last night.

The thousands who jammed the railroad stations both here and in Chicago as they did just four short months ago when he led his football legions back from their glorious invasion of the west, were silent, awed and hushed as the casket was trucked quickly to a waiting hearse and taken slowly through the massed throng to the funeral parlor, where it will rest until the funeral.

Last Rites Indefinite

Even today, pending Mrs. Rockne's arrival from Florida, funeral plans were indefinite. It was the general belief that the funeral would be held Monday or Wednesday from Sacred Heart church on the Notre Dame campus, where Rockne worshipped and where he was baptized six years ago.

On route last night, Mrs. Rockne was reported to have mentioned "the funeral Saturday" but a special dispensation from the bishop of the Fort Wayne diocese would be necessary because of holy week. Everything waited Mrs. Rockne's wishes. Burial will be either at Sacred Heart cemetery just off the Notre Dame campus or in a Chicago cemetery.

Burial Place Uncertain

It was very unlikely, however, that burial will be made in Chicago, as Mrs. Rockne has intimated to friends that "Rock" always said that when he died that he wanted to be buried as close to Notre Dame as possible. All attention and sympathy today was extended to Mrs. Rockne, a delegation was assigned to care for her minutest wants.

Meanwhile Notre Dame and South Bend paid silent respect. Flags were at half mast as they will be until after the funeral. Business was more or less at a standstill and most of the students, advised that they couldn't see the face of the great master of foot-

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, April 2—Cleveland, with its new municipal stadium, was mentioned loudly today in the hallyhoo over sites for Max Schmeling to defend his heavyweight championship against W. L. "Young" Stribling.

Only a dispute over the stadium rental was holding up Cleveland's definite selection. It was unofficially reported after conferences here between William E. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden corporation; Joe Jacobs, manager of the German heavyweight; and George H. Bender, stadium manager.

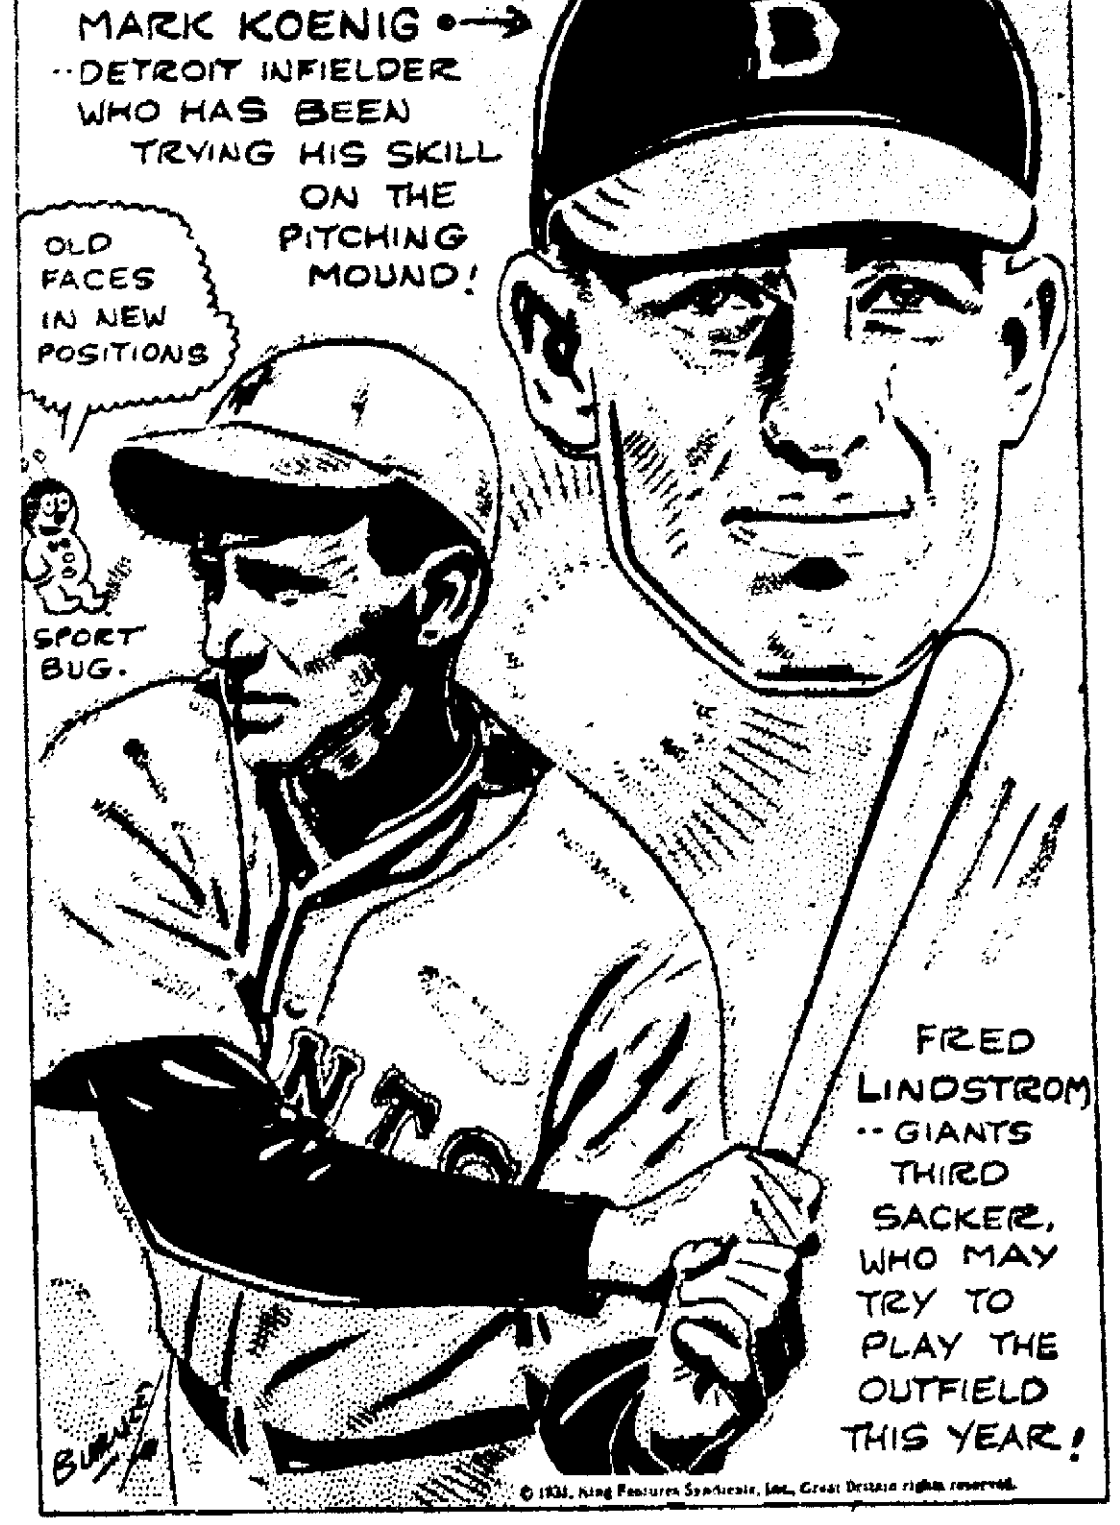

They said they would announce a decision tonight after more conferences.

Jacobs was sure Cleveland had the "inside track" over Chicago's Soldier field and Detroit's arena. The hitch came, it was understood, over Bender's desire to obtain a considerable rental fee and demands that the promoters install all "necessary equipment," including a platform to accommodate between 40,000 and 50,000 people and costing around $40,000. Bender was said to have asked that this be given to the city without cost after the fight.

The promoters, however, were believed to have asked that the plant, seating around 120,000 with the tiered platform, be almost donated in return for the publicity. The bout probably would be held July 3.

Carey and E. C. Wetten, representing the Madison Square Garden corporation of Illinois, had nothing to say except that they would make some more telephone calls to Detroit and Chicago.

Shifting Their Positions

Time alters all things, including, of course, the positions as well as the efficiency of ball players. When a great infielder begins to slow down even a trifle, it is the common practice to transpose him into another position where the grind on the legs and other speed muscles is not so great.

An excellent illustration of such changes was exemplified in the career of Joe Sewell, former Cleveland infielder. For about nine years he played shortstop superbly and was considered one of the best in the majors. However a shortstop has to cover a lot of ground and needs agile feet for the task. Therefore, several seasons ago, when it was evident that the diminutive star's legs had slowed down, Sewell was transferred to the hot corner, where there was not much territory to cover.

Now for example, consider the case of Freddie Lindstrom, for several seasons a great third baseman with the New York Giants. This year training camp efforts were made to convert him into an outfielder, because the team had acquired a promising dizzy corner rookie in Johnny Vergez, who was a sensation in the Pacific Coast League. At this writing Vergez is doing well on defense, but with the but he's no Lindstrom thus far. So McGraw may finally decide to

"Fake" Charges Seattle After Probe of Wrestling

By The Associated Press
SEATTLE, Wash., April 2—Charging wrestling seemingly was controlled throughout the country by two powerful "syndicates," the Seattle Athletic commission has ordered that city matches hereafter be billed as "exhibitions" and not as "contests for physical supremacy." It proposes to name its own referees in the future.

The commission said the two groups of promoters were the Jack Curley syndicate in the east, whose "alleged champion of the world" is Jim London, and the Lewis-Sandow-Bowser syndicate of Glendale, Calif., with Ed "Strangler" Lewis, former champion as its head, and Don George as its "champion."

Wrestlers of the two factions, the commission declared, deliberately staged "fake antics" in the ring.

Gus Sonnenberg, while traveling as "alleged champion," and George, who won the "alleged championship" in his recent tour here, were managed by the same promoter, the commission found.

"It is seemingly impossible for wrestlers from one group to invade the territory controlled by the other group," the commission report said.

"It is impossible for anyone else the referee, to determine from the performance of the wrestlers whether they are giving the best that is in them for physical supremacy. The report follows an investigation into alleged "crooked" matches here.

The commission suspended Jack Rutledge, Spokane matchmaker, following charges by George M. Dowell, Seattle grappler, that Rutledge had suggested McGraw allow his competitor to win a Tacoma match.

The Duluth, Minn., hockey club recently broke scoring records by caging 13 goals in an American league game with St. Louis.

AMERICAN LEAGUE IN LEAD OVER NATIONAL

Junior Circuit Holds 3-Game Advantage in "Grapefruit" Loop Contests.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, April 2—Just when it looked like the National league might pull ahead of the American circuit in their annual fight for the springtime championship, up popped Manager Bucky Harris' Detroit Tigers during the past week to turn back the men of Heydler.

After having remained on the sidelines most of the spring, the Tigers jumped into the inter-league warfare with both feet and captured three out of four from the Pittsburgh Pirates. As a result, the American league was able to increase its advantage to three full games. The score today stood: American 21; National 18.

Outside of the Tigers' winning spree, the two leagues fought on even terms for the week—what time they were not being rained out. The Giants licked the White Sox two out of three as they started their tour out of Texas, but the Yankees squandered it up for the American league by taking their only start from the Phils. Cincinnati split with the Athletics in the only other tilt between the rival leagues.

TO ATTRACT LEADING SCHOLASTIC STARS

Three Relay Events Carded for Ohio Scholastic Athletes This Month.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., April 2—Track and field stars from Ohio high schools will have their inning this month with the running of three meets in various sections of the state—the Mansfield, Defiance and Dayton Stivers relays.

These meets will serve as preliminaries to the Ohio relays on May 1 and 2 when star inter-scholastic performers gather at the Ohio State university stadium on the day preceding the college and university carnival.

At Mansfield, Director Harry Mechock has already received word from some 40 class A schools signifying their intention of sending entries. The deadline for accepting entries has been fixed for April 19.

There will be 20 events on the Mansfield program this year, seven being relays. Mechock's Red Streaks have been successful in winning the meet for the last four consecutive years, although in the past teams from Columbus East, Akron Garfield, Lima South, Lakewood and Toledo Scott have won the Streaks a battle and are expected to do so again.

At Defiance the meet will be conducted over a two day period, due to the large entry list attracted from Ohio and Michigan. The meet has the approval of both the Michigan and Ohio State athletic associations.

Director Paul Lyne recently mailed out 500 invitations and the response so far indicates that the meet will be larger than ever.

From the southern and eastern sections of the state Dayton Stivers will draw its contestants. The Stivers relays have rapidly become one of the outstanding inter-scholastic meets of the season. The date for this year's affair has been fixed for April 25.

Kerr Declines Grid Post at Western Reserve

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, April 2—Andy Kerr has declined to leave Colgate university and Western Reserve university's football coaching situation was in as much a muddle as ever today.

Kerr, in a long distance telephone conversation, informed Director of Athletics Gordon Locke last night that he was "morally obligated" to stay at Colgate under the terms of his unexpired contract which has a year to run.

PRE-HOLIDAY MARKET DULL

Adverse Dividend News Causes Drop in New York Share Prices.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 2.—The decline in share prices gained momentum in today's stock market, rounding out a fortnight of almost steady backsliding.

Some observers had expected the closing out of short contracts in advance of the Good Friday market holiday tomorrow to give the list a temporary upturn. A rally did get under way in the morning, but soon lost in a wave of selling.

The day brought forth more adverse dividend news, although the reduction of U. S. Industrial alcohol's annual rate from 60 to 52 cents was less drastic than some observers had expected. With alcohol selling at 19 cents a gallon, it is believed to be below production costs.

The company is in a good financial position to weather an unprofitable period, however. Archer-Daniels-Midland omitted the 50 cent quarterly payment due at this time.

The bond market continued to give a somewhat better account of itself, but with a large offering of treasury certificates, or possibly government bonds expected next week, it was held in check. Call money remained at 1 percent, but not plentiful at that level.

The definite reversal of the upward trend in steel mill activity, as reported yesterday, had greatly impaired speculative sentiment. It is still too early, however, to judge the significance of this development.

Next week's steel mill estimates are awaited with keen interest. Republic Steel is starting up two open hearth furnaces at its Bourne-Fuller plant.

The automobile Chamber of Commerce's March production estimate indicates that the industry in the United States and Canada produced about 290,000 units last month, a substantial gain over February. Advance estimates for April, however, are less optimistic than recently. While 400,000 units was mentioned a short time ago, trade circles now expect the output may be under 350,000 units.

Strawberries which have been coming in plentifully have dropped in price in Cleveland and probably will go down here. Head lettuce and new cabbage have also dropped slightly on wholesale markets but not enough to change the retail value.

GRAIN BRACES AFTER SLUMP

Reports of Increased Vessel Chartering Causes Down-Turn at Chicago.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, April 2.—Reports of increased vessel chartering in southern Russian ports saw grain prices average lower early today with oats outdoing the season's low price record. Buying however, for previous sellers who wished to even up accounts in preparation for a holiday tomorrow served to steady the market somewhat.

Opening 4 cents off to 1/4 up, wheat afterward kept near to the initial range. Corn started at 1/4 decline to 1/4 advance, and subsequently grained further.

All grains hovered around the season's lowest prices. Corn and oats reached new bottom levels and wheat acquired largely to discouraged holders. Prospects of an increased acreage of corn this season had a particularly baneful influence, more than offsetting at times the effect of curtailed receipts both of corn and wheat.

Helping to give relative steadiness to wheat, however, were reports of early emergence of grasshoppers in half a dozen states, especially Missouri and South Dakota. Crop experts said that unless the eggs prematurely hatched or a prolonged wet period followed normal hatching, serious damage could be expected in heavily infested regions. Bulls made much ado of signs of continued good export demand for Canadian wheat. Oats awayed with other cereals. Provisions held about steady.

REAL Doctor's Remedy safest aid to bowels

A DOCTOR knows the best and safest way to stimulate the bowels when bad breath, coated tongue, sluggishness, or a bilious, headachy, gassy condition shows they are lagging. There could be no better proof of this assertion than the overwhelming sales and popularity of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Syrup Pepsin is a doctor's prescription for the bowels—made by the same formula Dr. Caldwell wrote and prescribed over and over during his forty-seven years of practice. He tested its gentle action with women, older people, babies and children; saw that it does not gripe, sicken or cause any discomfort. He proved its action thorough, complete, with the most robust men. Then as its pleasant taste and perfect action caused it to grow in popularity, he permitted it to be bottled and kept by drugstores everywhere, ready for use. Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your drugstore today. Then, next time you or any of your family feel the need of a bowel cleansing, you will have a doctor's choice of what is best.

Flashes of Life

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK—April Fool, eh? Mr. and Mrs. Investor of America got something like $750,000,000 in dividends and interest yesterday.

Mahatma Gandhi agreed "Washington would be best of all," but added, "We have no voice in the matter."

NEW YORK—Alexander Woolcott, literary, has left for a birthday party in China. There will be 999 or so other guests. The party will last a month. It is in honor of the mother of Henry Kean Yuann, who got chummy with Woolcott in American college days. Yuen's father was once president of China.

SMALLPOX IS HELD IN CONTROL HERE

Officer Credits Vaccination with Checking Disease. One Case Reported.

A case of smallpox reported this year has been under quarantine by Dr. C. O. Berringer, 53, of Church street, is in his home with a light condition was reported. He said that smallpox has been practically stamped out in Marion county following the threatened epidemic of late 1929 and early 1930. Wholesale vaccination of school children under the direction of the health commissioner and of commercial and industrial workers brought the disease under control in a short time. The health commissioner today again urged vaccination as the only positive method of controlling and wiping out the disease. He said persons should be vaccinated about every five years.

DAILY PROVERB—"In the short life of man

no lost time can be afforded."

Mrs. Roy Chapman Andrews has secured a

Paris divorce from her explorer husband.

She probably figured that Roy might attain greater success in his chosen life work were he not handicapped by the call of home.

Since it has been disclosed that it is American jazz and not American music which has been barred down at Guadalajara, Mexico, it is hardly liable that any protest on the part of Americans will result. It is even possible that many Americans may offer the Mexican city their congratulations.

Will Hays says the American public is getting romantic and turning its thumb down on the hard-boiled screen stuff. Let us hope that its thirst for romance may cause it to turn its thumb down on the suggestive and filthy as well.

Two pieces of sugar cane brought from

Porto Rico by President Hoover for his grandchildren were seized by agriculture department inspectors at Hampton Roads and destroyed.

Well, so far as that goes, cane brought here by the President might carry just as much tropical plant disease as cane brought back by the lowliest citizen, and the law is the law.

A big bomb was exploded, one day this week,

under the residence of the Spanish consul in Santa Clara City, Cuba. Possibly it was the purpose of some Cuban who had been following European cable advice to make the consul feel perfectly at home.

The attempt of the French soprano, Lily

Pons, to break her contracts has revealed that she is obligated by contract to pay the Metropolitan management one-third of her earnings on and off the stage; the Metropolitan musical director, one-twentieth; her vocal teacher in Paris, one-twentieth; and her agents, fifteenhundredths. Opera stars, seemingly, do not stand much more chance of making big financial clean-ups than prize fighters.

Holding it as a plan to drive out bootleggers,

the mayor of Reno, Nevada, proposes that a barrel of whisky be placed "on every street corner" and every man be permitted to help himself. Here's another of those remedies which might prove worse than the disease

it is intended to cure.

The citizen of Akron, in this state, who perforated the Goodyear Rubber company's blimp, Mayflower, with bird shot as it was sailing over a Florida swamp, causing it to lose its supply of helium gas and seven men to lose their jobs, was given a three-month prison sentence down in Tampa this week, the more serious charge of assault with intent to murder having been withdrawn. This can't be taken to mean, however, that the next man who shoots at an air machine will escape with punishment so light.

A Crime Against Humanity.

It has been established that the SOS call picked up by vessels along the New Jersey coast, last week, causing a number of craft to rush to the assistance of a vessel described as sinking, was sent out from Hoboken. Vessels to both the northeast, and southeast having received the call, it was easy to locate its point of issuance in that New Jersey City.

Just what prompted the sending out of the call is as yet a question. In shipping circles some are inclined to believe that it was the result of some mental defective's conception of a good practical joke. The coast guard, however, is inclined to believe it to have been a scheme of rum-runners to cause coast guard vessels to leave their patrols and rush to the scene of the supposed sinking and thus afford them opportunity to land their cargoes of liquor. If the latter is the explanation, the scheme didn't work, as but a few of the coast guard vessels answered the call, and before doing so they asked other coast guard vessels to relieve them in their patrols while they went on their supposed errand of mercy.

Possibly it would be going too far to expect either a half-wit capable of utilizing an SOS

call for the purposes of a practical joke, or one engaged in rum-running, to give heed to what was the final outcome in the story of the boy who called: "Wolf! Wolf!"

If there is one call which should be held more sacred than any other it is the SOS.

As one editorial writer has put it: "It is the intangible life line upon which, very largely, depends the safety of crew and passengers in almost every ship upon the ocean. Its whole value rests upon the guaranty against its misuse." To resort to any practice which will tend to make an SOS call at any time or from any quarter subject to question is more than a crime against one of the finest traditions of the sea; it is the vilest of vile crimes against the very spirit of humanity. The same punishment should be meted out to one convicted of such a crime as would be administered to one who by intent caused human life loss.

The Theory and the Practice.

The proposal of the United States Flag association to engage passage on a ship sailing under a foreign flag to convey to Europe the sixty-three winners in a flag essay contest it is sponsoring is hotly assailed by Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover, chairman of the postoffice department's subcommittee on merchant marine, and not without reason. The absurdity of attempting to develop reverence for the Stars and Stripes and the Constitution—we believe that such is held out as the purpose of the contest—by sending the winners of the contest abroad on foreign owned and operated ships is so obvious that it is hardly necessary to point it out. The proposal of the Flag association is closely akin in its element for surprise with that of a group of several hundred postmasters and their wives who planned to take passage on a foreign ship for a holiday in Europe. It is good to know that Mr. Glover learned of this plan in time and nipped it in the bud.

Either of the foregoing plans is reminiscent of the course of some of our federal legislators who prize their great friendship for the American merchant marine and show their lack of it by patronizing foreign steamship lines when going abroad. And this, too, in the knowledge that hundreds of millions of dollars are being expended in the United States to bring back our merchant marine to the position it occupied half a century ago when it was given 100 per cent. American patronage.

"Why should we go out and support ships flying foreign flags," Mr. Glover asks, "when the American merchant marine provides vessels that offer the same and better facilities. Right now the United States is building fifty-six ships at a cost of $340,000,000 and trying to educate the American people to the fact that there is a merchant marine that is ready to transport them anywhere, to carry their goods with expediency and economy and to serve them with the best.

"Here are young students, winning through their alert brainwork on the theme of the flag of the United States and its Constitution a free trip abroad, and then it is announced that they will travel aboard a vessel flying a foreign flag.

"Shipbuilding has been the only industry that has not suffered during this world-wide depression," the assistant postmaster general said, "principally because the government stands behind it. Now, why can't the American people stand behind the government and the ships of the United States, which are constructed by American labor, with American money and of American material?"

The assistant postmaster general declined to commit himself regarding the merits of the association's contest, replying to press inquiries: "Call it what you like, but I believe it is this sort of thing that is damaging when we are in the midst of trying to educate the people to the fact that they have the best merchant marine in the world."

There are many who will not be so backward as Mr. Glover in expressing their opinion of any plan to teach young America reverence for our flag and the Constitution by sending the winners of such a contest abroad in foreign ships. Passing the disadvantage and discouragement worked to our merchant marine, what other than ill can the effect be not only upon the contest winners, but upon all the young writers taking part in the contest as well? Can it be possible that they will not see the wide and deep gorge between theory and practice in American support of the flag?

Universality of Interest.

Meager information to the effect that an earthquake and fire had destroyed Managua, Nicaragua, Tuesday, was the signal for every nation within easy distance to undertake some sort of relief enterprise.

President Hoover did not waste a minute in ordering the Red Cross to proceed with relief work, and within a few hours an official of that organization was on his way to Managua in an airplane. United States cruisers in the vicinity were ordered to stand by to assist the distressed populace, and American engineers stationed in Nicaragua to make a survey of a proposed interoceanic canal were instructed to help.

The alacrity with which adequate assistance is offered a distressed country has become commonplace, but its humanitarian aspect is unimpaired. Perhaps people always have been willing to help as they are today, but previously their hands were tied by the total lack of facilities with which to work. Cables, the radio and the airplane have made almost instantaneous information available for newspaper readers today, and a few short hours after any major disaster the population of any thickly-populated country is apprised of all the necessary information.

Universality of interest is matched by universality of sympathy.

A Senator Sees His Duty.

Senator Brookhart holds as his conception of a senator's proper attitude, that the nation and all its possessions are his field of service—even as in the frustrated dreams of the idealistic John Quincy Adams during the first bitter days of factionalism in congress.

During his visit to the Panama canal it has seemed to Senator Brookhart that there is too much drinking going on among United States sailors and soldiers in the Panama district. Promptly, without even letting a scowl of disapprobation go to waste, the senator promises that he will introduce a resolution in the next congress prohibiting members of the army and navy visiting any place in Panama where liquor is available.

Just as promptly, the Panama City newspapers promise Senator Brookhart that if he is spoiling for a fight he has selected the right spot. They have a natural pride in having some hand in the conduct of their affairs, and the senator's reputation for snooping in tolerance where liquor is concerned has preceded him, no doubt.

It gives promise of an unpleasant debate in congress next session, but the public can take comfort in the knowledge that the senior senator from Iowa "has seen his duty and done it."

Editorial Opinion.

THE COST OF INEFFICIENCY.

While every one has known that the cost of government has risen rapidly with the spread of governmental functions, the cold figures measuring this increase are startling, to say the least. In calling the matter one of "serious concern," the National Industrial Conference board uses extreme mild language. It might have said that unless the heading rate of tax increase is checked our national and state and particularly our local governments will soon be bankrupting whole classes of citizens.

In a period of fifteen years the total annual cost of government in the United States has risen from less than $3,000,000,000 to more than $12,000,000,000. While the price we pay for public service is approximately four times as great as in 1915, the national income has only just more than doubled itself. It does not require a mathematician to forecast the dismal end of such a process.

And of all these twelve billions of dollars, where did most go? Where most always goes—to the cities, counties, incorporated villages, townships and the ever-hungry school districts. They directly swallowed more than half of the total tax revenue, in addition to spending additional millions redistributed from state tax funds, which were not charged against them in the figures of the survey. From another source it is learned that, on an average, total county and municipal expenditures have increased more than 200 per cent. in the last ten years; their public debt in excess of sinking funds has increased more than 300 per cent. In this time the net taxable valuation of property has advanced only ninety-seven per cent., while the average tax rate has been boosted approximately seventy per cent. Again no devotee of the higher calculus is required to foresee inevitable confusion at the end of this dizzy tax spending.

There are two approaches to the problem, and it is vital that both be taken. The burden of taxation must be spread more equitably over all property. Necessary, but not easy, as the beleaguered gentlemen who toll at Columbus over new tax law will readily tell you. The cost of government must be reduced—and that means the cost of local government. Again a few earnest idealists at Columbus will assert that a wall of waste, preference, job-holding in the smaller units bars this reform.

And so it does. The causes of the high cost of local government are clear. Half a dozen different agencies, duplicating their efforts, support half a dozen separate offices and organizations. Each division, however small, has its officials, police, firemen, commissioners, superintendents, assessors, auditors, solicitors and what not. Jurisdiction is narrowed down to the smallest possible areas in the sacred name of home rule, organization of a type that would ruin any business in a week is allowed to stand; clumsy and laborious way of doing things are retained because such ways make for more jobs; materials and supplies are bought in small quantities at high prices by a hundred different spenders of money in a single county; local responsibility is hopelessly divided and obscure.

Laws regularly are passed conferring some new power of taxation, without thought of where the money is to be raised or how efficiently it is to be spent. Yet when a harmless and potentially very helpful measure, such as the county government amendment is introduced—which would force economy on one who didn't want it—the very legislators who cry loudest about the burden of taxation turn their backs on it.

Coordination does not have a clash with home rule; it merely would make home rule, which heretofore has been a very expensive right, less less costly.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Dinner Stories.

"Of course, you can't be expected to please everybody."

"You are mistaken about that," answered Senator Sorghum. "A politician can please all kinds of different audiences with all kinds of different speeches. One of the things our public appears specially to admire is versatility."

"Here's a writer says that the four years a young fellow spends at college are wasted. Do you believe that?"

"Decidedly not. Think of the education his father gets."

Pat was tipping his young friend, Mike off what to see when he went to Dublin. "Of course you'll be going to the zoo," said Pat. "And I want to give you a word of warning about that. You'll see some fine animals if you follow the directions. To the Lion and To the Elephant," but take no notice of the man "To the Exit," for begorra, Mike, it's a fraud, an it's outside I found meself when I went to look at it."

The Word of God.

O fear the Lord, ye His saints: for there is no want to them that fear Him. The young lions do lack, and suffer hunger: but they that seek the Lord shall not want any good thing.—Psalm 34.9, 10.

Lassell, Satellite Discoverer.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

From time to time, in the history of astronomical science, there arises a natural and devoted student of the heavens, who devotes his life to a study of celestial objects. Of course, disinterested students in science are rare, especially as they usually lack the incentive which comes from some educational institution, laboratory or observatory. Lassell was a maker of instruments, and a man who built his own observatory. He pursued his researches independently, although from time to time he worked in conjunction with other observers. Nor was his fine and devoted spirit unrecognized. He served as president of the Royal Astronomical society from 1870 until 1872.

William Lassell was born at Bolton in Lancashire, England, on June 18, 1779. After serving with a Liverpool merchant from his sixteenth to his twenty-third year, he conceived the idea of manufacturing a telescope for his own use. His confidence in his own mechanical ability was not misplaced, and in due course of time, he came to be recognized as a master maker of telescopes, second only to that supreme master in producing telescope reflectors, Sir William Herschel.

In 1825 he went into business for himself, and in fifteen years laid by a moderate fortune which left him independent. In 1840 he built for himself an observatory at Starfield, near Liverpool, and set up a Newtonian reflector of his own construction. Six years later, after perfecting a method for polishing telescopic mirrors, he mounted in his own observatory a new telescope of considerable proportions. For more than two centuries, various mechanics and astronomers to perfect a mechanism for keeping a telescope pointed to the same region of the heavens, the movement of the telescope effected by the mechanism counteracting the rotation of the earth. Lassell devised an important equatorial mounting for his telescope; and Sir John Herschel testified that Lassell's improvement marked a new epoch in the development of the reflecting telescope.

Lassell developed into an observer of rare skill and ability. He displayed unusual perception in his observation of comets. With his instrument of twenty-foot focal length, he made a number of important discoveries. Neptune was then a recently-discovered planet, and Lassell discovered that it had a satellite which was revolving in the retrograde direction. Simultaneously with Bond at Harvard, he discovered the eighth satellite of Saturn, known as Hyperion, and in 1851 he independently discovered two satellites of Uranus. Lassell also showed that four satellites which Sir William Herschel claimed to have discovered—in addition to two which were actually true finds—were optical illusions.

During subsequent years he observed the sun in total eclipse, the Orion nebula and Saturn's rings. He constructed a magnificent reflecting telescope, thirty-seven feet in focal length, and by means of it discovered 600 nebulae, which he carefully catalogued. Later he removed his observatory to Maidenhead, on the Thames. Here he lived for the remainder of his life, pursuing his researches and publishing scientific papers until his death in 1880.

Where the War Found Sheridan.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The outbreak of the Civil war found Phil Sheridan, like most of those who were to become famous in it, in an out-of-the-way place. Sheridan, a second lieutenant still, was attached to the Fourth regiment stationed at the post at Yamhill, Oregon. News of the firing upon Sumter startled the post when it reached that faraway place. Though none of the officers of the regiment were suspected of sympathy with the South, many of the men were from that section. Their greatest concern was to the probable disposition that would be made of the regiment in the war.

Their anxiety was ended by orders that came soon sending the regiment east. The Ninth cavalry was to take its place at Yamhill, and Sheridan was left in command of the post until the Ninth could reach it. Pending its arrival, there were rumors of the disloyalty of its colonel, J. J. Archer, and the conduct of that officer was such that when he did arrive, Sheridan refused to give over the command to him. Colonel Archer was given a leave of absence by the war department, and before it ended he had tendered his resignation.

There was no little southern sympathy in California and the sentiment was such that secession seemed imminent, not only because of the feeling referred to, but because of the isolation of the coast from the rest of the nation. It was before the days of railroads and telegraph lines linking that section with Washington. When Sheridan was able to leave Yamhill, he followed his regiment east, but went by steamer sailing from San Francisco, and using the Panama overland route.

So fearful were the loyal passengers on the steamer that the southern sympathizers would seize the vessel and run her into a southern port, that they secretly effected an organization with well-concealed plans for resisting such an attempt. But they were unnecessary, and the vessel on which they continued their trip by sea on the Atlantic side reached New York in good time and without mishap.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, April 2.—It was the wagon, Eddie Cantor, cleaned out himself, what he cleared right after the market crash that sent clerks inquired of guests seeking rooms, "sleeping or jumping?" Since December 1929 a total of 102 spectacular window leapers have been first paged.

In fact there have been so many sky-divers that these suicides are classed as a routine in newspaper shops. Carl Brann, literary agent, has been a witness to three cases of window jumping that never reached the news columns.

Such tragedies are increased by the power of suggestion. One in a neighborhood is often followed by a series. Some of the taller buildings employ "suicide look-outs" to patrol the halls and watch those who may be acting suspiciously.

The most ghastly high leap recorded was from a top floor of the Woolworth building about eight years ago. So frightful was the impact when the victim landed on his feet that a bone in his leg was driven through his body and through the top of his skull.

day's session of the senate when the bill regulating the sale of fireworks comes up.

The discussion will pertain to the Beard bill, which has passed the house. It provides for the regulation of the storage, transportation and sale of fireworks in the state and provides stringent penalties for violations.

The senate also will have the opportunity to pass on the amendment marriage license bill which the house has approved. This measure requires a lapse of five days between the application for the issuance of a marriage license. Its purpose is to prevent hasty marriages.

Education Bill Up

The house had before it today a proposal to abolish the constitutional office of superintendent of public instruction (director of education) and a bill to limit his authority. Both were approved by the senate yesterday.

While it approved a proposal to abolish the constitutional office, the senate refused to vote abolition of the office as a statutory measure and turn its duties over to a state board of education.

The senate vote on the constitutional amendment to abolish the office was unanimous, while the bill to curtail the education director's statutory authority, was 36 to 5.

The bill prohibits the director from canceling the certificate of a high school or denying it a certificate because the board of education does not provide for more than 32 weeks of instruction and maintains adequate gymnasium facilities.

BOTH PARTIES LIKELY TO FIGHT TAX BOOST

Leaders Realize Either Group May Be Held Responsible After 1932.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The cooperation of both major parties in the next congress was looked for today to prevent a federal tax increase.

Responsible party leaders in both houses have expressed opposition to increased levies to meet the expected $700,000,000 deficit this year and the probability of another next year.

The balance receipts and expenditures for the 1932-33 fiscal year will be kept to a minimum. Budget Director Roper made this promise after Chairman Jones of the senate appropriations committee asked a closer paring of government expense estimates.

Jones said he believed at the next session "Democrats will be as anxious as Republicans to keep down expenditures" since "each party realizes it may be held responsible for the condition of the treasury after 1932."

MEXICO CITY, April 2.—A Cuernavaca divorce court has called the curtain down in short order upon the month-old romance of Betty Compton, stage star, and Edward Duryea Dowling, employed as a motion picture dialogue director.

The divorce was granted March 21 by Judge Samuel Carpio of the Morelos state court. It has been revealed. The Dowlings were married in New York on Feb. 16, and became estranged within a few days after they left for Havana on a honeymoon trip.

Four days elapsed between filing of the application and the granting of the divorce. Miss Compton is that time complying with Morelos state laws requiring establishment of residence in the state, by remaining in Cuernavaca for a day or two.

The actress charged Dowling with cruelty, personal violence and refusal to provide maintenance.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 30 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he saved his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, yellow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, head aches, a listless no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c—14¢.

Here with is the solution to yesterday's puzzle.

"Heart of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Calms Katherine. AS I waited for Katherine's answer to my request that she let me keep the venomous letter which Ruth Allen had sent her, my conscience—or what was left of it—told me grimly that I was deceiving my friend in the proposal I had made to her, and that the excuse of doing the best thing for her which I was hugging to my heart would not bear the scrutiny of an impartial student of ethics.

For I was determined that Jack Bickett should know what the sister of his associate in the South American expedition had written Katherine. I had just told my brother-in-law that I should steal, and thereby mangle the letter back to him, but I had carefully evaded making a promise to keep him ignorant of the whole affair.

As long as you do not send it to Jack, I don't care what you do with it," Katherine said slowly, at last. "But—if he comes back, I don't want you to show it to him, unless I consent to it, which, I tell you now, I'm very sure I never shall do."

"No, I won't show it to him without your consent when he comes back," I said, folding the letter into small compass, and slipping it into the breast pocket of my morning dress, with an elaborately nonchalant gesture. "And now, don't you think you'd better take an antidote for that dose of poison?"

I waved my hand casually toward the letter from Hal Meredith which lay unopened upon the table. I held no particular brief for the brilliant alienist, but I knew that the surest palliative for a hurt dealt a woman's pride and love by one man is the assurance from another that she is desired above all others. Katherine had been stung so deeply by the venomous letter tucked in my pocket that I was ready to take any means to comfort her.

She gave a little laugh, so bitter, so unlike my little madwoman, that I shivered. Then she picked up the letter, and held it out, looking at it incredulously.

"And I was flatter myself on my conscience a few minutes ago with the stern admonition that I ought to tell Hal to stop writing," she said, "May I?"

"Well! He wants me, if my husband doesn't," she said, and her voice held the defiant note of a child who had partly decided upon a course of rebellion.

"It wouldn't be fair to Hal to let you read this letter," she said, "but there are two lines which I must show you."

She folded the letter carefully and handed it to me, and I read the two lines she indicated.

"You are not being fair to me," I read. "Make no mistake, there will never be any other woman for me, but—am you going to let me eat my heart out forever?"

For an instant I had the eerie feeling that the lines bore in them something of sentence. Then I raised my eyes and looked at Katherine steadily.

"One thing I want you to know," I said. "It is not because Jack is my brother-in-law that I have pleaded his cause today, and have been skeptical of the truth of the letter from that woman. If you love Hal Meredith, as he undoubtedly loves you, do not, I beg of you, be influenced by anything I may have said or by any consideration of my feelings. This is too big a thing for the meddling of any outsider. It lies wholly with yourself."

"And I—I—can't decide," Katherine burst out surprisingly, and at the note of hysteria in her voice I rose quickly, knowing that she needed solitude more than anything else.

"Think it over carefully," I advised. "And if you'll excuse me, I'll go up to my room and lie down a few minutes. I got up with a miserable headache this morning, and it isn't getting any better."

"Mingled Emotions," I had sounded the right note. She was on her feet in an instant, and before I could reach the door, she was preparing me a potion for headache.

"Don't dare to get up until you feel better," she said as I left the room, and I went down the hallway with what the old novelists used to call "mingled emotions," pleasure in the success of my ruse, and shame because I had enlisted her sympathy under false pretenses. For the headache I had cited, while real, did not warrant any fuss.

Jubilee's Pardner
A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

TOMORROW will be Friday, and the next day will be Saturday and we can go out in the woods and maybe find us a snake.

I would like to find a big snake and skin it and make me a hatband or a belt out of its skin, but I tried to skin a snake once and it stilt to be skinned even when it is dead. I could skin a boyconstrictor if I could catch one and it didn't catch me first, but its skin would be too big for a hatband or for a belt.

My grandfather used to skin eels when he used to catch them for a living. He said there was a big fat man in the town by the river where he used to catch his eels and he said the fat man wanted a big wide belt to put on under his clothes and make him look not so fat, so my grandfather told him he ought to have one made of eelskin and he told the shoemaker how to make it, big and wide with a strong buckle on it, and he put it on the fat man with the buckle behind and cinched it up tight, and he pulled his shirt down over it and said it felt fine, and he went home, and my grandfather went to catch some more eels, and when he got home that night he went to the fat man's house to see if he still liked it, and the fat man's wife was looking over his life insurance policies and the fat man had a waist like a wasp, and his eyes were hanging out on his cheeks and his tongue was sticking out like a wagon tongue and he couldn't talk, and my grandfather pulled up the fat man's shirt, and the eel skin was green and it had swunk up and was choking the fat man to death, and my grandfather just touched the belt with his knife and it popped so sudden that the buckle flew off and killed the cat.

Feeble had come in and she asked my grandfather if the fat man ever forgave him, and my grandfather said the fat man did but his wife didn't. Then my grandfather said he was a natural born liar or if he just got that way when he grew up, and my grandfather only chuckled and said it was a gift. She asked him if he knew why the Lord struck Ananias and Sapphira dead, and my grandfather said he guest it was because the Lord don't like amateurs.

Day after tomorrow will be a week since my uncle got a job and he will get paid then, and my mother says she will spend the first week's board for hungry, and when I asked what that was my grandfather said it was the stuff that makes my grandfather bigger around the store windows. I went out and gathered up Jubilee and the bunch and we went past the old church on the way to school. It was full of children but no one touched in. The Last Day of Term was over and I was glad that it was over, and I was glad that I was going to school, and I was glad that my mother will let me go to school with her to spend my school days.
